

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention concerns a beverage container for containing a beverage under gas pressure. The beverage container has a floor and a gas container attached inside the beverage container to the beverage container floor. The gas container has a floor made out of an elastic material and has an upper part. The gas container floor is connected via a snap connection with the beverage container floor.